

Test Organization Options: A Lifecycle Aware Analysis

How should we staff and organize our test teams? This is a great challenge for many test managers, and indeed the organizations that have test teams. Should we have specialized or generalized test teams? What role (if any) do people outside the testing team play in testing? Should we have an in-house testing center of excellence or testing services organization, and, if so, what should that team do? When and how should we use outsource testing service providers? How do lifecycle options like the V-model, iterative, agile, and spiral affect the answers to these questions? These are hard questions that many RBCS clients struggle with. Join this webinar to review and discuss the options available, in an interactive forum, with Rex Black. Attendees are encouraged to send questions and topics to cover to Rex prior to the webinar.